

Naga By Blood

Is Modi's government really serious with the Naga issue and hammering for Solution?

From the routine 2/3 a year rounds of talks to marathon one. Over 40 rounds of talks have reportedly been held between the government of India and the NSCN-IM leaders in the past few months. This is possible because NSCN-IM leaders are engaging in talks with representatives of the government of India almost every day. Source according to NSCN-IM leaders informed NNN that both the parties are holding talks five days a week after the format of the talks are changed late last year. "Both the parties are working very hard to shorten things and we are hopeful that it may not take long from here in reaching an agreement," the source confided. The source also revealed that the Prime Minister Office (PMO) is also actively involved in the talks by way of updating things every time the NSCN-IM leaders and the government representatives meet which was not the "case in the UPA government era."
